SB 827

- SB 827 "Transit Zoning Bill" was introduced in 2018 by Senator Scott Wiener (D-SF) and would have allowed for the development of up to five story multi-family developments in proximity to transit stations with relaxation of local development standards.

- The bill did not proceed past the first Transportation and Housing Committee hearing on April 17, 2018.

  - City Council approved and sent a letter of opposition to the bill based on the draft language and offered comments for refinement.
SB 827-COUNCIL COMMENTS

• Council suggestions for refinement included:

  — Link expanded developer rights to the success of the City’s RHNA goal

  — Add affordable housing requirement to the bill

  — Allow cities to maintain reasonable design review standards for the building exterior

  — Height standards should be linked to lot size, street dimensions and existing height requirements

  — Include a provision allowing more housing to be built in urban areas where jobs have been created but no new housing has been built.
SB 50

• SB 50 “More HOMES Act” (Housing, Opportunity, Mobility, Equity, and Stability) was introduced by Senator Wiener on December 3, 2018.

• The proposed bill is modeled after SB 827 with modifications:
  — Preserves statewide labor standards
  — Inclusionary zoning requirement of 15-25% low-income homes depending on project size
  — Qualifying projects proposed for either the "job-rich" or "transit-rich" development zones would be exempt from density and parking requirements
  — Rental properties that have housed tenants any time in the last seven years or where owners have evicted tenants under the state’s Ellis Act in the last 15 years will be ineligible for zoning waivers
